The Appalachian Forest Heritage Area (AFHA) is seeking AmeriCorps members to provide direct service on projects that enhance community, natural, and historic assets to benefit communities. AFHA is an 18-county region in the highlands of West Virginia and western Maryland. We work to conserve, enhance, and interpret our forest heritage assets, which include natural, historic, cultural, forest products, and forest management. We encourage heritage tourism as diversified economic development for our rural communities. For more information on AFHA see appalachianforest.us.

Four program areas are available to choose from:

- Conservation – Conserve natural resources including ecosystem restoration and improving public lands, habitat monitoring, and environmental awareness;
- Community -- Help rural communities with economic development, events, partnerships, and tourism based on their local assets and cultural resources.
- Heritage – Develop and conserve local heritage and encourage heritage tourism; serving with museums and historic sites.
- Hands-On Team – Small team serving together on a variety of projects focused on historic preservation of historic community buildings and short term conservation tasks.

AmeriCorps members are primarily based in Randolph or surrounding counties in West Virginia. We are looking for individuals with commitment and initiative, and with a related degree and/or experience in one of our program areas. AFHA AmeriCorps members serve full-time and receive a living allowance, plus an educational award at the completion of your one year commitment. For more information on AmeriCorps, see www.americorps.org/for\_individuals/overview/index.asp
