

APPALACHIAN FOREST HERITAGE AREA

Volunteer! MVP

The MVP: Monongahela Volunteer Program is busy developing and organizing conservation-based volunteer and eco-tourism opportunities. Since its beginning, the MVP has worked as a collaborative partner with many area organizations. MVP volunteers have planted over 7000 trees and 2 native plant gardens, surveyed 32 miles of forest trail and 842 acres of forest land for Non-Native Invasive Species, co-sponsored the Garlic Mustard Challenge which has removed thousands of pounds of the NNIS Garlic Mustard, and raised awareness of the importance of conservation and the value of forest products. This year the MVP has set out to accomplish even more! We'll be hiking trails, fording streams, pulling NNIS, planting trees, and much more! Sign up today by emailing:

AFHA AmeriCorps – Getting Things Done

The torch has been passed to yet another team of AFHA AmeriCorps, made possible by funding from Volunteer West Virginia and the Corporation for National and Community Service. This year's team comes from all around the country, bringing with them diverse backgrounds and skill sets. After training, each member is placed with an area sponsor that represents the AFHA mission. With twenty members this year placed in heritage development and tourism, historic preservation, and environmental conservation sites, AFHA AmeriCorps is going strong and "making a difference" in the Paint, Epoxy, and Windows ... Oh My!

by Crystal Whitters, AFHA AmeriCorps Historic Preservation team

The historic preservation team is receiving a well-rounded introduction to historic preservation. From hands-on restoration to real estate development, team members Joey Aloji, Dan Melena, Terry Hackney, Zach Swick, and Crystal Whitters are learning about the diverse field of reusing valuable resources in communities. In addition to various levels of construction experience, each member contributes a knowledge area to the team: Joey, window restoration; Dan, landscape design; Terry, master carpentry; Zach, demolition; and Crystal, architectural drafting. During the first several months of service the team has been working with community members in Elkins and Beverly at four sites: Riverside School, The Gum Hart / Collett House, Elkins City Hall, and the Darden Mill.

Standing on ladders and scraping paint at the Collett House in Beverly is how the five historic preservation team members began their service term in Beverly, WV. The site sponsor for the Collett House is the Beverly Heritage Center, under the direction of Chelley Depp. The original log "fort" was probably built in the 1770s by Montgomery "Gum" Hart. Later owners applied additions to grow into the house still standing today. Andrew J. Collett and family owned the house 1871-1948. The two-story L-shaped house with a Federal-style entryway served as a hospital during the Civil War. Before the first snowfall, the team reached a good stopping point for scraping and painting, with nearly all of the exterior clear of the old paint and covered with a fresh coat of paint.

Saving a window

Back in Elkins, the team worked with AmeriCorps alum and site supervisor Joe Sabatino, on the rehabilitation of Riverside School. Riverside School, was the historic school built to educate the African American population in and around Elkins. It was built in two phases: the first story in 1906 for eight grades and the second story in 1925 to expand the school for ten grades. After the school closed in 1954 due to school integration, it passed from several owners until its last incarnation as a mechanic's garage. In preparation for the rehabilitation, the team organized the first floor classroom/garage conversion into an organized workshop equipped with lumber, hardware, and tools. The Riverside School rehabilitation has been a valuable resource for the team to learn about a critical component of historic preservation – the bid process. In preparation for the bid package that contained the scope of work, the team learned how to map the areas on each elevation that are in need of brick re-pointing. Additionally, they surveyed the windows, noting the existing condition of the windows such as missing sashes and muntins. One of the members, Crystal, drew as-built drawings of the school to accompany the scope of work.

As the mercury declined and the snow began to fall from the sky, the team moved their AmeriCorps service operation indoors. After receiving training from fellow team member Joey on window restoration, the team repaired windows from the Darden Mill and began restoring the windows from the fourth floor/penthouse of Elkins City Hall. The Elkins City Hall is an interesting case in adaptive reuse. Built in 1917, it was originally home to the Elkins Post Office and Federal Building. Today, it contains city offices, City Council chambers, and the police station.

In addition to providing hands-on restoration support to four buildings in the area, the team has received training in Elkins and at the Preservation Alliance West Virginia state-wide preservation conference. At the conference we learned from master plasterer Sarel Venter how to repair historic plaster and back in Elkins Joe Sabatino trained us on how to reconstitute deteriorated wood. Joe trained the team on wood windows, and they applied the knowledge to repairing some of the clapboards on the Collett House.

200 years of old paint: The Collett House

The team is using this knowledge as they engage in their winter indoor project – the restoration of the wood windows from Elkins City Hall.

Additionally, the AmeriCorps members are assisting with an often overlooked, yet vital component of historic preservation – real estate development. The project for this aspect of preservation is First Ward School in Elkins. Built in 1902, the school has stood vacant for nearly 20 years. Zach completed a marketing prospectus and the team is currently researching potential developers and possible adaptive reuse for the school.

Service Projects:

As if all that weren't enough, in their "spare time" members have organized several service projects ranging from dump site cleanup and garden planting to helping with Martin Luther King Jr. Day events. They have planned events to recycle electronics and old paint, and are sponsoring upcoming events for tree planting and building bird & bat houses. AFHA! Here is an update on this team's activities, with a special report from the Historic Preservation team. Come to the Stakeholders meeting on April 8 to meet the members and see them in action!

Heritage AmeriCorps:

AFHA AmeriCorps heritage program sponsors have praised the work of this year's team! Just since September, they have: cataloged historic documents and artifacts, created a new library at the Darden House, prepared the Elkins Depot for the upcoming tourism season, brought the EBT food card to the Elkins farmers market, developed tourism and fundraising in Arthurdale, and continue to support the ongoing development of the Beverly Heritage Center and Rich Mountain Battlefield. This year marks the especially challenging and rewarding 150th anniversary of the First Campaign of the Civil War and AFHA AmeriCorps members have been an integral part of the planning and preparation for this commemoration.

Conservation AmeriCorps:

This year's conservation sponsors include the USDA Forest Service, Monongahela National Forest, the US Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Canaan Valley National Wildlife Refuge. AFHA AmeriCorps conservation members are based out of Elkins, Marlinton, and Richwood. A sampling of their work this year includes: GPS-mapping trails and forest features, developing strategic planning documents, developing and installing interpretive signage, educational outreach, bird, bat and vernal pool monitoring, NNIS identification and eradication, and more!
